

MTA – what it is and what it is not

What it is

- Lower-level general education; breadth, not depth
- Minimum of 30 credit hours must be taken in approved disciplines
- A more rigorous distribution of disciplines that reflects the majority of lower-level general education at the receiving institutions
- Two-year to four-year transfer
- A roadmap for undeclared/undecided students

What it is not

- A new name for the MACRAO Agreement
- A guarantee that all lower-level general education will be waived
- A certificate that is transferable to any four year institution
- A roadmap to self-advising
- The best fit for every student
